NEW THIS ISSUE

Use of different software means that the “on line” version of the Newsletter now has a fuller index with “click on” links to the articles. This should make it is easier to navigate around, and to go straight to articles that are of particular interest to readers.

In order to facilitate clearer copying, the hardcopy version sent out by post has a slightly different County results supplement, but still contains the same information.

THE BIRMINGHAM POST CHESS COVERAGE

Those of you who are members of the MCCU Group will already be aware that Peter Gibbs chess column has disappeared from the Birmingham Post. Many thanks to those of you who wrote to the Editor to express your concern and disappointment. Whilst unfortunately this has not led to the reappearance of the column, it does seem to have resulted in the paper reassessing its' chess coverage.

This email reproduced on the next page was the second or third response most people received. If this really was their original intention, why did they not put out the above as the first response to those who emailed them? Why indeed did they not favour Peter Gibbs with this news when telling him his services were no longer required?

In my experience it is rather unusual for any organisation to suspend something whilst exploring a revised approach. I suggest that the paper is either guilty of poor planning in not having new style coverage in place before suspending the existing coverage, or, it grossly underestimated the interest in chess. I feel it would also have made more sense for them to carry out their fact-finding exercise, and then explore whether Peter Gibbs could deliver, or at least contribute towards this.

A. J. MCKENZIE

With thanks to Lee Collier

The current demise of chess coverage in the Birmingham Post, whether temporary or permanent, led Lee to search out information about the very first regular chess columnist.

Mackenzie was the regular columnist of Birmingham's Daily Post from 1896 to 1948. There have been only 3 columnists in more than 100 years; Baruch Wood succeeded Mackenzie in 1948 and Peter Gibbs took over in February 1967.

He was born 5.2.1871 at 370 New John Street West, St George, Birmingham, England. Died 21.8.1949, aged 78, Hastings, England.

The district around New John Street West, where Mackenzie was born, was known as St George's. It is now called Newtown. Places in the area still have the old name: St George's Street, St George's Church of England School, St George's Church.

A J Mackenzie was the match secretary at the Birmingham St George's chess club early in the 1890s. Over the next few years, he had helped to form the:

Birmingham and District Chess League (1897),

MCCA (1897) as it was then called,

Warwickshire Chess Association (1900)

British Chess Federation (1904).

The latter is unconnected with the British Chess Association, which existed from c.1861-1892.

In addition to playing for the Birmingham Chess Club, he also played for St George's, Municipal Officers and Handsworth.

The St George's Chess Club was founded in 1877 and it was a founder member of the BDCL. It played in the League

The following is the latest email received: -

The Birmingham Post is reorganising coverage of chess. With this in mind we have suspended our regular weekly column while we explore new ways of covering the chess scene locally.

We apologise to readers who have been expecting to see the column, and who have been alarmed at news on the Internet that coverage has ceased in our pages, but we want to emphasise that far from cutting back on coverage of the game locally, we want to present a more wide-ranging and comprehensive overview of the Midland scene.

To ensure we are giving local players and clubs at all levels what they want to see, we are asking anyone interested to fill in the following questionnaire. What are you most interested in (please tick the appropriate box):

I would urge all interested parties to ensure they let the paper know what they want by way of chess news. The battle has been partly won; don't squander the opportunity to press home a victory.

between 1897-1903 and 1905-1906. It won division one for 4 successive seasons (1899-1902) and division 2 Champion in 1906. St George's was incorporated into the Birmingham Chess Club after World War one.

The BDCL was founded on 31 August 1897 when A J Mackenzie met with J.Pearce Derrington (YMCA cc), A H Davies (Central cc), W Renwick (Central cc) and Mr Ridgers (Bohemians) in the Central chess club at the London Restaurant in Corporation Street, Birmingham. They invited club entries and on 21 September 1897 they drew up a programme of matches. Eight clubs entered in that inaugural season and Dudley became the first BDCL Champions.

The MCCA was founded on Saturday 24 July 1897 at the St George's cc, Athletic Institute, John Bright Street, Birmingham.

Having been the first honorary secretary of both the WCA and MCCA. He became the MCCU President in the early 1930s and he served on the BCF Executive from its foundation in 1904 until into the 1930s. Amongst other posts, he was the BDCL President in 1902-03 and was deputed British delegate to the FIDE council in Stockholm in 1937.

Mackenzie won the Scottish championship 3 times; 1908; 1909 & 1913. His first title was in Dundee in 1908 when he scored 7/7, winning by 2½ points. He won the title again in 1909 and 1913, both in Glasgow. He played for Scotland in the Folkestone Olympiad in 1933.

He was the first Warwickshire Champion in 1931 with 4½ out of 5, finishing ahead of Ritson Morry (3rd). Although he left Birmingham in 1931 to live in St Leonards he continued to play for Warwickshire until after World War II.

B H WOOD

Baruch H. Wood, better known as B. H. in chess circles, was born in Sheffield on 13th July 1909 and died on 4th April 1989. In addition to the Birmingham Post he was chess correspondent of The Daily Telegraph and The Illustrated London News for many years. However, he is probably best remembered for his magazine CHESS which first appeared in 1935. Despite the obvious difficulties, B.H. succeeded in publishing CHESS throughout World War II, all the more remarkable considering he was also working full time as Director of a chemical research laboratory. The magazine gained an international reputation as a frank, outspoken publication and had subscribers across the globe. He also penned chess books, the best known being Easy Guide to Chess, which he not only wrote, but also printed and sold.

Like McKenzie his involvement with chess was not limited to writing. He was no mean player, drawing with Max Euwe, who became a life long friend. He was second in the British Championship of 1948 and represented England in the International Team championship of 1939.

Having been played chess as University student in Bangor, where he gained a first in Chemistry, he became heavily involved with university chess and was President of the British University Chess Association right until his death. His move to the Midlands arose when he took an MSc at Birmingham University. He was also a driving force in postal chess, founding the Postal Chess Club, and filling the post of President of the British Postal Chess Federation for a number of years.

Many clubs over the years have also been kitted out from the premises next to Sutton Coldfield station from which his chess equipment business was run. I'm sure there are still "Coldfield" clocks being used today. If all these activities were not enough, he was also an International Arbiter who organised 21 annual chess festivals at seaside venues starting in the 1950's.

His services to chess were recognised in several quarters, he was a recipient of the BCF Presidents Award in 1983, an O.B.E. in 1984, and a Life Member of F.I.D.E.

NEW YEARS HONOURS

A Midlands chess player found himself appearing on the latest New Years Honours list.

Alex Crombie of Rutland is a blind solicitor and is celebrating an MBE awarded for his outstanding service to the nation's blind community spanning 30 years.

For the last 26 years he has been a key figure in Vista, Leicestershire and Rutland's society for the blind. He was also a groundbreaking chairman of the National Library for the Blind and chairman of the British Braille Chess Association.

He told the local newspaper the Leicester Mercury "I found out when I received a letter from Downing Street in November. After pinching myself about 100 times I thought it was brilliant. I was surprised but proud. I've been totally blind for 40 years. That gives you lots of time and opportunity to think about the particular problems people with disability have."

One of his most wide reaching achievements was helping introduce computerised Braille printing during his time at the British Braille Chess Association. It revolutionised the way Braille books were produced, increasing variety and printing speed.

As chairman of the British Braille Chess Association he helped double its membership and even lasted five hours in a game against world champion Gary Kasparov

LOCAL HONOURS

Alex Crombie was not the only Midlands player to have his achievements recognised. Hinckley & Bosworth Borough Council recently held its' third "Achievement Awards" ceremony. Peter Gibbs found himself with an invitation to receive an award from the Mayor for his services to chess in general and blind chess players in particular.

I am sure a large number of Midlands players know Peter as a regular County player, both over the board and postal. West Midlands players will also associate him with the Birmingham Post chess column.

However, some of you may not be aware that Peter has served as an arbiter for the Braille Chess Association for many years and is an International Braille arbiter. He is also controller of the Veterans section of the correspondence chess championships.

He is no stranger to awards having been given the BCF Presidents Award in 1988, but having your efforts recognised by the local community is nevertheless a proud achievement.

Linking both Peter's involvement with Braille players and his own chess, here is a little gem featuring a blind player of master strength: Reg Bonham. Peter Gibbs was the winner, in his own words it was an "unexpected 21st birthday present". (sorry Peter this gives your age away!)

CONGRESS RESULTS

4th WREKIN CONGRESS

3RD/4TH January 2004

REPORT FROM GRAHAM SHEPHERD

128 players took part at Madeley Court Sports Centre. The entry from Shropshire League players was down by 20%, but was compensated for by an increased entry from outside the county. The congress ran very smoothly and seemed to be enjoyed by all taking part. Russell James (South Birmingham) was the unexpected winner of the Premier, ahead of Lawrence Cooper IM and John Cox FM. Joe Curry, a junior from Halesowen, had a very rewarding weekend, winning the Minor & Junior prizes.

The next congress has provisionally been arranged for 8th/9th January 2005 at the same venue.

29TH NOTTINGHAM CONGRESS

23RD-25TH APRIL 2004

I am pleased to announce that, after lengthy negotiations, we have finally secured a superb new venue befitting the above event.

The congress will take place at Nottingham Forest F C, The City Ground, Nottingham NG2

5FJ in the Pitchside Diner, a magnificent facility which runs the entire length of the pitch and overlooks the River Trent. The venue offers excellent catering and leisure areas capable of holding an event of this size several times over!

There will as usual be 3 sections - an Open, Major (U160) and Minor (U120). Entry fees will remain very competitive and the congress will continue to represent one of the best value-for-money events in the country.

Entry forms will be available within the next two weeks and we hope this venue will attract a suitably substantial entry.

More details will shortly be posted on the tournament website at:

<http://mysite.freemove.com/nottsevents2003>

MIDLANDS OPEN

The Midlands Open at Hinckley will offer an increased prize fund. The first prize in each section will be £400, £200, £200 and £140 for the Open, U170, U130 and U90 respectively. Two places will be available for the British Championships and will offer bursaries of £75 each.

The Entry forms will be printed and available for March 10th, and a copy will be on the website for downloading and use.

The venue is more spacious than last year, and refreshments will be available at reasonable prices both on site and within walking distance. If you want an entry form, please send an email to mccuchesscongress@yahoo.co.uk or ring 01536 261697 or 0116 260 9012.

Plea from the editor

If you are running a local congress that does not appear on the BCF Calendar, let me have details and I will gladly publish them in the events section. The only condition being that the results are sent to me for inclusion in the issue following the event.

If you would like entry forms circulating by email, send me a copy, or if possible a file (I can handle Word, Lotus 123, pdf, gif & similar files) The Midlands Chess email group has over 200 members who include many club secretaries.

DID YOU KNOW

Some snippets of chess trivia

318,979,564,000 is the number of possible ways of playing just the first 4 moves on each side in a game of chess.

Champion For A Day:

After the death of Alexander Alekhine in 1946, FIDE held a meeting to decide on how to choose the next World Champion. The FIDE delegates decided that since Max Euwe was the only ex-World Champion still alive, he would be the "World Champion" until FIDE organized a tournament to find the next champion. The Soviet delegates arrived at the meeting a day late. They had the decision annulled, and thus the world title was left vacant, till Botvinnik won the 1948 tournament. Thus Euwe was "technically" World Champion twice: 1935-37, and one day in 1946.

Candidates Roulette:

The winner of the drawn 1983 Candidates quarter-final match between Vassily Smyslov and Robert Hubner was decided by the spin of a roulette wheel. Smyslov "won" and advanced to the Candidates semi-final.

Time Consuming:

German master Friedrich Samisch lost all 13 of his games in the 1969 Linkopping tournament by failing to meet the time control in each game.

Get A Kick Out Of This:

The mutual loathing between Viktor Korchnoi and Tigran Petrosian was so bad that when the two players faced each other in a 1977 World Championship Candidates match, a wooden division was placed under the chess table so that the players could not kick one another.

Simultaneous First:

Swiss player Hans Fahrni (1874-1939) was the first master to play 100 opponents in a simultaneous display. He scored +55, - 6, =39 in a seven and a half hour display at Munich in 1911.

For Medicinal Purposes Only:

Mikhail Chigorin had a bottle of brandy next to the board, which he drank from, when he played Wilhelm Steinitz for the World Championship title in 1889 and 1892.

Chairman of the Board:

English GM Julian Hodgson was unhappy with the chairs provided for the 2000 British championships, so he brought along his own armchair, which he used for the whole tournament.

THE CAKE PROBLEM

A chess player and gourmet once invited a friend to his home. The friend, Onésime XADREZ, besides being a good chess player also appreciated fine food.

In honour of his guest he ordered a cake decorated with a chess problem of his own composition. The problem was symbolic as it was in the form of a letter O, the first letter of his friend's name.

Mate in Two

Before serving the cake his cook cut it into four pieces. Unfortunately just as he was going to serve it he stumbled and dropped the cake. Picking up the pieces he quickly reassembled them on the plate inadvertently mixing them up. The cake that arrived at the table looked like this –

The cook's master, noticing that his problem had been destroyed and the surprise spoilt started to insult the poor cook. Onésime Xadrez was however staring attentively at the cake and the problem. Suddenly he cried, "Calm down my friend! Nothing is lost. The pieces now make an X, the first letter of my surname, and it's still mate in two!"

A CHESS DOUBLET

Lewis Carroll is famous for his doublet puzzles. A word is modified one letter at a time until a prescribed final word is reached e.g. APE – DAM is reached by are, arm, aim, dim, dam.

Can you convert CHESS to CHECK to MATES? I am assured it can be done and invite your solutions to this puzzle – the shortest set of links will be published in the next issue – closing date for replies 17th March.

Does anyone have any other doublets on a chess theme, if so please let me have them.

Alekhine's Favorites

AS AN ASIDE TO THE ABOVE –

Alexander Alekhine had 2 cats as pets. He named them "Chess" and "Checkmate."

FORTHCOMING BIRTHDAY

Bobby Fischer, former World Champion will be 61 on 9th March 2004. He won the US Open when only 14. At 15 became the youngest Grandmaster in the history of chess at the time. At 29 he became the first American to win the World Championship defeating Boris Spassky of the USSR. He was stripped of his title after refusing to defend it, but regained it 20 years later, again defeating Spassky. He slipped out of the game to become a reclusive character, although there have been claims of him popping up playing on the internet under assumed names. The most publicised of these being in 2001 when Nigel Short, who was convinced he had been trounced by Fischer repeatedly at 3 minute chess.

MIDLANDS CHESS HISTORY

I recently received copies of some Midlands related pages from 2 old BCF Yearbooks. They provide an interesting window to the past. Having triggered my interest, I would really like to hear from anyone who can provide further historical information relating to Midlands chess of any kind, e.g. anecdotes or excerpts from old publications.

The older set of papers relate to 1933/4, I wonder if there are any players in their 80's who might have been starting out their chess careers in the Midlands back then? It is interesting to note that the Union consisted of a different combination of counties back then.

Oxfordshire were a Midland county, whilst Shropshire & Hereford were a joint entity and Derbyshire, Lincolnshire & Northamptonshire either didn't exist or were affiliated elsewhere – can anyone from those counties provide some more background?

Many county matches were played over 12 boards, though 18 appears to have been the maximum for championship purposes. The MCCU secretary, C. A. James, provided an annual report relating to the 1932/3 season, which began “ Interest in chess in the Midland Counties was fostered during the season by the introduction of an American Tournament to decide the championship of the Midlands, in lieu of the knock-out tournament previously held. Under this system more county matches were played than hitherto”. He went on to state that Warwickshire won the southern section and Staffordshire the northern section. The final between the two was a 10-4 win for Warwickshire. The report also mentions a 100 a side match between Warwickshire and Worcestershire in the season 1931/2, claimed to be the biggest provincial match in history at the time, he does not include the outcome. Can anyone out there provide more details of this event?

County entries for Leicester & Nottinghamshire showed that the Leicestershire League had 2 divisions of 6 teams drawn from 7 clubs, whilst Nottinghamshire list 7 teams, including 2 based in Derbyshire.

The later set of excerpts received relate to 1951/2. I am hoping there will be rather more players who have memories of that era. By this time Derbyshire and Lincolnshire are listed as affiliates. The county team competition still ran with 2 groups, with the winners playing in a final for the county title. Nottingham and Oxford were the finalists, with Oxford the winners. The county team rules show the playing session as being a minimum 3.5 hours. The number of players in a team depended on the number of members in a county. Where this was over 100 a minimum of 20 players was expected, except where they played a county with less than 100 members when 16 boards was the minimum. The time control was 36 moves in 90 mins, with 6 in 15 after that. Unfinished games were adjudicated with a fee of 5/- (25p) paid, the successful claimant receiving a refund. B. H. Wood won the 1952 MCCU Individual title.

County affiliation fees were shown as 2/6 (12.5p) per head for members over 21; 1/6 (7.5p) for those 18-21 and under 18 free. Vice-Presidents had to pay 10/6 (52.5p)

The county excerpts show that Derbyshire was in its early years, having been formed in 1945. Despite this it had grown to 12 teams. The Leicestershire league had expanded to 3 divisions of 8 teams each, drawn from 17 clubs. Half of the league consisted of “works” teams. This contrasts with today's league has only 1 team that could be called a works team. A total of 1,194 games were played with 37 adjudications submitted. There is also mention of a friendly match with the Coventry league, which Coventry won 18-10. A City v County match was also held over 68 boards, an innovation that season, but the result is not included. The Leicestershire League was apparently not the only chess league in the county, as a match was held against the Leicester Working Men's League, a 20-14 win for the Leicestershire League. The Lincolnshire entry shows that their association was indeed in existence in 1933/4 having been founded in 1878. Their club list shows 6 clubs, 3 of which were in Lincoln.

A number of the clubs listed are in theory still going, many have not been operating continuously over the years, even allowing for breaks for the 2 World Wars. I wonder which Midlands club has been running the longest? Let's have your claims for this record.

ON THE BANNED LIST

If you thought chess was a harmless game that no-one could take exception to, think again. Chess has been on someone's banned list, somewhere in the World, many times over the centuries. The following is a potted history covering some of the times, places & people for whom chess was a prohibited activity.

The playing of chess (shatranj) was an issue after Mohammad died in 642 A.D. In 655 his son-in-law, the Fourth Caliph Ali Ben Abu-Talib announced his disapproval of the game for members of his sect of Muslims because he regarded the pieces as graven images. But the later caliphs themselves played and had chess players in their circle of influence. Legal scholars debated the merits of chess. It was legal to play chess, provided it was not played with items of chance (dice,) and no betting or gambling was involved. Due care had to be taken not to miss prayers and to abstain from insulting or profane expressions.

It was still disapproved of in 725 by Sulaiman ibn Yashar, a scholar, but continued to be popular among the caliphs, especially when they moved their capitol to Baghdad in 750 and took their top chess players with them. The caliph al-Mahdi wrote a letter in 780 to Mecca religious leaders exhorting them give up gambling with dice and chess, but he died in 785 and caliph al-Rashid came to power and he was an avid chess player. By 810 the top chess players in the world were known and recognized and all were sponsored by powerful caliphs. In fact, the word Grandmaster was introduced by caliph al-Ma'mun in 819 AD.

Around this time chess was becoming popular in India. By 900 there were problems caused by players actually wagering fingers in their chess matches - you lose, you cut off a finger. The Egyptian al-Hakim banned chess in Egypt in 1005 and ordered that all chess sets and pieces in the country be burned. The 11th Century also saw chess pick up in Europe and very soon some of the clergy were said to be spending more time playing chess than saving souls. In 1061 Cardinal Damiani of Ostia forbade the non-monastic clergy from playing chess. He died in 1072 and chess resumed in his domain. By 1093 the Eastern Orthodox Church condemned chess. The Orthodox Church stamped out chess in Russia as a relic of heathenism.

By the start of the 12th century chess was accepted as a regular feature of noble life in England. It was even a knightly accomplishment to play chess and was played by the upper classes. One of the acceptable reasons for having a lady in a gentleman's lodging without chaperon was for the game of chess. One wonders how many sets were sold to non-players! By 1115, the leader of the Byzantine Empire was a chess addict. Despite that, it was still being banned in some churches up to 1125. John Zonares, a former captain of the Byzantine imperial guard, became a monk and issued a directive banning chess as a kind of debauchery. St. Bernard (1090-1153) forbade his Knights Templars from playing chess. However chess became a popular pastime during the crusades. By 1195, Jews were seriously involved in playing chess, but Rabbi Maimonides included chess among forbidden games. In 1197 the Abbot of Persigny was also warning folks not to play chess.

The 13th Century saw continued local bans on Chess. In 1208 the Bishop of Paris, Odo Sully, banned his clergy from playing the game. It was also forbidden in Worcester, England in 1240 by the religious leadership in that area. In 1254 St Louis of France restricted chess to laymen and Provincial councils were also forbidding chess in France. King Henry III (1207-1272) instructed the clergy to leave chess alone "on pain of durance vile." In 1291 the Archbishop of Canterbury, John Peckman, also forbade chess. He threatened to put anyone on a diet of bread and water if they played.

However, Averbakh's book "Rook and Minor Piece Endings" contains a position from an Arabic manuscript which has been dated as being from 1257 AD and the chess historian van der Linde found a similar position in a manuscript whose creation dates from 1140AD. Van de Linde established that the author of this position was al-Adli who lived in the 9th century, when the moves of king, rook and knight were exactly the same as today.

The 14th Century started with further anti-chess pronouncements. Chess was forbidden in Germany in 1310 after the Council of Trier. In 1322 the Jewish rabbi Kalonymnos Ben Kalonymous condemned chess. By 1328 the Jewish laws were interpreted by some Jewish leaders that chess could be played, but not for money. Chess was still forbidden in Germany up to 1329 after the Synod of Wurzburg. Charles V (1337-1380) of France continued the prohibition chess in his domain. His successor Charles VI (1368-1422) continued this line. He later became insane.

The 15th Century saw the tide turn. By 1416 the Jews of Forli in Italy relaxed their rules and forbade all games of chance except chess. In 1420 Werner von Orseln, the Grand Master of the Knights of the Teutonic Order, abandoned the prohibition of chess on the grounds that chess was a proper amusement for a knight. By 1476 chess was being played in France again under Charles the Bold.

The 16th Century saw further progress, though there were still those who held to old beliefs. By 1500 chess was a recognized pastime for Jews on the Sabbath. In 1550 Saint Teresa of Avila, a Spanish religious reformer, mentioned chess in her writings to illustrate ethics and chess. The Church authorities in Spain proclaimed her patron of chess players. But just a year later in 1551 Czar Ivan IV (1530-1584), Ivan the Terrible, of Russia banned chess. The leading clerics compiled the Stoglav Collection (council of the Hundred Chapters) in 1551, which prohibited chess in Moscow. This same document prohibited shaving as well, as beards were said to imitate the visage of God and to distinguish Orthodox males from women. In 1575 a plague hit Cremona, Italy. Afterwards, all games were considered evil and the cause of their troubles. All games but chess were banned. Chess was still banned in Russia in the 17th century. In 1649 Czar Alexei (1629-1676) found some players playing chess and had them whipped and imprisoned. The Puritans also frowned on the playing of chess. In general chess was freely played elsewhere through the 17th, 18th & 19th Centuries.

The 20th Century saw the game being banned in certain parts of the World. In 1981 chess was forbidden in Iran as it encouraged gambling and was unlawful (haran). Chess players went underground with their boards and pieces. In 1988 the Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini (1900-1989) issued a religious decree, permitting chess play for Muslims as long as it was not played for the purpose of gambling and it did not delay the obligatory prayers or cause neglect other duties. The Ayatollah changed his mind after admitting that chess had its high educational and intellectual values. Chess made a comeback, spawning chess parks, chess palaces, and chess masters. In 2000, an Iranian became a world chess champion. In October 2000, Atousa Pourkashian of Iran won the World Girls' Chess Championship for 12 and under at the tournament held in Madrid, Spain. Iran also produced a recent World Boys' Under 10 Champion. Today the Chess Federation of Iran occupies one of the best buildings among all sporting federations in the country. All over the country there have construction of chess clubs. Prior to the Ayatollah, Iran, under the Shah, was the only Islamic country that organized chess and participated in chess tournaments, including the 22nd Chess Olympiad in Israel in 1976 (in Haifa).

Over the years a number of famous religious leaders have played chess, they include Thomas Becket (Archbishop of Canterbury), Charles Borromeo (Bishop of Milan), Pope Gregory VI, Pope Innocent III, Pope John Paul I, Pope John Paul II, Pope Leo X, Pope Leo XIII, Cardinal Richelieu, and Billy Graham.

The Taliban, when they ruled Afghanistan, believed chess was a form of gambling and distracted people from saying their prayers. When the Taliban caught people playing chess, they would burn the chessboard and pieces and put the players in jail. For five years (1996-2001), Afghanistan was the only place in the world where playing chess was illegal.

One wonders whether we can get through the 21st century without chess appearing on someone's banned list somewhere.
